

I am opposed to any further loosening of the ownership restrictions which will further limit the public access to viewpoints outside of the mainstream, mass consumer culture--which is perpetuated by the for-profit media companies. Further deregulation will only further consolidate media outlets into the hands of fewer corporations, and limit the access that smaller, more independent media to the public airwaves. These changes will neither enhance competition nor the consumer's ability to pursue other points of view, which maybe at odds with the profitability of particular corporations vested interests. I hope that you will hold a public hearing on these changes in NYC, before your vote next month.

Thank you for your time.

Daniel Starling
Brooklyn, NY